Old Timer Passes Away

Another of the old timers of this section has passed to the great beyond when Mr. James T. Waters met his death by accidently drowning at Holbrook, Alaska.

The gas boat Vermont arrived in port last Tuesday morning at 7 a. m. bringing the body here and turning it over to the authorities for the holding of a coroners inquest. A Coroners Jury was drawn, and at the inquest, Gust Capstad, watchman at the Holbrook Salmon Saltry, the only man who has any intimate knowledge of the affair made the following statement, "For some time prior to April 28th Mr. Waters has been ailing, and on Wednesday April 28, I went to his house in the evening and stayed until he told me he was going to bed, when I went out and returned two hours later and found him in bed. About six o'clock next morning I went to his house and he was not there. I hunted for about three hours and not finding him I went over to Tokeen and reported the matter to Mr. Moore and ask him what I should do, he told me to go back and hunt good for him. I went back and hunted all that day and also the next day until about six o'clock in the evening of Friday, April 30, when I found the body floating in the bay near the dock. I went over to Tokeen and notified Mr. Moore who sent word to the Commissioner at Craig, and we took care of the body until Sunday when the Commissioner did not appear and Mr. Moore sent the Vermont with the body to Wrangell, and we arrived here this morning."

The Coroners Jury returned a verdict of "The deceased met his death by accidently drowning at Holbrook, Alaska, on the 29th day of April."

Mr. Waters was a native of England, 77 years of age. He came to Wrangell in the early boom days and for years run a meat market in the building now occupied by the Thlinget Trading Co. The wife of the deceased passed away here some few years ago. He leaves a son Mr. Walter Waters, manager of the Holbrook Saltry.

The funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at the Presbyterian Church, and the remains were laid to rest in the Red Men's cemetery.

The Ladies Basket Ball suffered defeat at the hands of the Ketchikan ladies in their game played in that city, by a score of 17 to 2. —We were promised an account of the particulars of the trip but for some reason has failed to arrive at press time, so particulars latter,

A good show at the Wrangell Photoshow tonight.

Judge Jennings Makes New Ruling On Saloons

According to a ruling make by Judge Jennings on May 1st there will be a secret vote taken on the "wet" and "dry" question on the 24th of this month. Also that a census of the town shall be taken at once of every male and female over the age of 21 residing within two miles of the place where intoxicating liquors are sold.

The instructions to that effect were received by Commissioner Thomas last Tuesday morning. Commissioner Thomas called a meeting of the liquor dealers of the town at the court house last Tuesday afternoon at which time he read to them the ruling of Judge Jennings which in part is as follows:

"There shall be a special election held in each city where liquor licenses are issued, on the 24th day of May. You shall appoint some competent and trustworthy man to take the census of your precinct taking the names of every male and female resident over the age of 21 years, as the law provides for a census showing the names of every male and female residing within the two mile limit. And on the 24th day of May every one shall go and cast their vote for or against the liquor traffic. It is not sufficient that a majority of the votes cast at this election be in favor of the issuance of the saloon licenses; but enough votes must be cast to make a majority of the entire number of names of residents secured by the census takers, in favor of the continuance of the saloons, to carry the election."

After the ruling had been made plain Commissioner Thomas stated that he would appoint a man at once to take the census and that he would appoint men who were not allied to the saloon interests or either the reverse.

Commissioner Wm. Thomas this morning appointed Mr. C. E. Weber and Mr. L. C. Patenaude as the census takers, and they are busy on the job today.

Picture Taking Tour Of World

E. H. Witt and Frank Chircosta two "Home Photographers" who are on a round the world tour for the purpose of taking photographs and moving pictures of all the principal countries of the world, arrived in the city the first of the week. They are introducing what they term home photography, or the taking of photographs in your own home with the home scenes introduced, instead of the troublesome visit to a studio. Both of the men are artists in their special line as an inspection of their work quickly shows. They expect to spend some time in Wrangell doing home photography and also for the object of taking a picture of every totem pole in the town.

Crushed Under Tons Of Ice

Peter Sheranoff is in the Wrangell Hospital suffering with a broken jaw, a smashed hip, and very severe internal injuries caused by having two or three tons of ice fall on him while he was at Leconte Glacier. His coming out of the ordeal alive is hardly short of a miracle.

The accident happened last Monday when the Telegraph from the Columbia and Northern went to the glacier after ice to pack fish in Peter Sheranoff being one of the crew of the boat. When they arrived at the glacier it was low tide so they went ashore and started breaking chunks from one of the big icebergs lying on the shore. Sheranoff was working at the bergs when all of a sudden a large section weighing some two or three tons gave way and came down on him completely burying him. The rest of the crew dug him out and rushed back to town for medical treatment.

Dr. Pigg reports him progressing as well as could be expected and that he has good chances for recovery.

Forming New Corporation

F. E. Parsons the well known drummer is in town this week. According to Mr. Parsons there is now forming a new corporation of A. Schonacher, C. Schonacher, Ray Atkison and F. E. Parsons, as the Schonacker Brokerage Company, Inc., of Alaska. And that hereafter these well known brokers will consolidate their numerous lines and handle the business with a head office at Juneau. All of the boys are well known and they are assured their share of the business.

Stiking Salmon Fishing Good

The summer run of salmon over on the Stikine flats is now on in full force, there being over fifty fishing boats after the elusive salmon there during the long hours.

Manager Jack Borge of the Columbia and Northern Cold Storage has between 35 and 40 boats so that concern alone on the run. The fish that are being caught are some of the finest in years, all being of a good size and extra good quality and the fishermen are making fairly good money.

Manager Borge states in discussing the outlook that his company are taking the fish more as a game of chance than anything also and the market for all of their fish hitherto has been in Germany which market is now closed and the fish being packed now will be stored with the hope that an early ending of the war will make a market for them. He states further that in view of this fact his company cannot afford to go over the present prices of 60 cents for the reds and 15 cents for white.

Yesterday the company packed away over 800 fine large fish and they expect to do better than that today.

Printing Point Does Not Bob Up and Down

In an L. C. Smith & Bros. Typewriter the point on the paper which is to receive the type impression is stationary at the instant the type hits. The carriage does not bob up and down when the shift is made to write capitals.

Why?

Because the type is shifted—not the carriage.

The only movement of the carriage is back and forth on its closely adjusted ball bearing runways—and this does not take place while the print is being made. There is no lifting of the carriage.

This is one reason why L. C. Smith & Bros. type-writing is free from blurs and every letter in the right place.

Will Alaska Go "Dry" Under New Ruling?

Like a thunder bolt from a clear sky, came the news of the new ruling made by Judge Jennings last Friday at Juneau, as it was generally conceded that the system used last year, of having every citizen signify their opinion of the liquor traffic by say for or against, would be used again this year, so when the new ruling was made calling for a secret ballot election it came as a big surprise. Much significance is placed on the new ruling, and it is thought by some that it means the death of the liquor traffic in many of the towns of Southeastern Alaska. What the outcome of the election will be in Wrangell is unknown, but the outcome means much to the town. In the minds of many the ruling is unfair to the saloon men, as they are now subject to a heavy license and this election only means another expense, also another unfair view expressed is the fact that the saloon men must cast a vote equal to two-thirds of the census of the town, and if a citizen is sick or otherwise unable to go to the polls and vote, even if he be the owner of a saloon, Judge Jennings says his vote is counted as a dry vote. At any event much interest is expressed and the fight promises to be a close one.

Second Session Alaska Legislature Adjourns

The second session of the Alaska Legislature has adjourned. The second Legislature has proven a progressive and conservative body, working for what they honestly considered for the betterment of the Territory. About 27 Senate bills were passed at the session, and about 60 House bills. The governor vetoed only two bills.

If the saloons are voted out, they, the saloons, will have to pay the election bills before they can quit, also they will have to pay a new license if they win, its pay either way.

Communication

Juneau, Alaska, May 3.
Mr. Paul Stanhope,
Wrangell, Alaska,
Dear Sir:

I see in your last paper that you have reported me sick with the mumps. Well I would like to have you correct your mistake.

I never had the mumps, but the cause of my sickness was from a fall from a narrow side walk. So please correct your mistake in your next issue. The report that is going around Wrangell is all a lie. I wish you would tell some of the boys for me. I am better and able to work again.

Thanking you in advance for your kindness,

Your friend,
Edward LaBounty.

A large number of our subscriptions are due. Is yours one of them?

FOOLED THE STUDENTS.

A Clever Hoax That Was Perpetrated at Harvard University.

Richard Washburn Child, the novelist, when at Harvard university was the originator of a joke which has become perpetuated in the university. The Bookman describes the incident as follows:

"While an undergraduate at Harvard Mr. Child happened to be, among other things, one of the board of editors of the Lampoon. The Crimson, the Harvard undergraduate daily, had announced that it would print no edition on Memorial day, 1901. At Mr. Child's suggestion the Lampoon issued a fake number of the Crimson, delightfully enough caricatured to deceive all but the most observant readers.

"The appearance of the college paper was accurately reproduced, even to certain typographical errors for which the Crimson had been notorious, but the contents were such that the whole Cambridge community was for a time in turmoil. Information that the janitor of one of the college laboratories had upset a jar of microbes and that all those who had been near the laboratory should report at once to the college doctor; that so-and-so of the crew squad had rowed himself out of his shell, but had reached shore without ill effects, and that the president and fellows of Harvard college had decided not to offer President McKinley an honorary degree was given with the utmost gravity.

"A statement in the fake that the Crimson was making more money than was warranted and that $1.50 on all $3 subscriptions would be returned that afternoon brought many freshmen to the Crimson office at the appointed time. A sign, hung in the night over the Crimson office, reiterated this announcement and was another part of the hoax. Its complete success was for long the talk of Cambridge and the forbidden subject of conversation in the Crimson sanctum."

A SOLEMN MYSTERY.

Mark Twain Declared It Cast a Gloom Over His Whole Life.

Once upon a time Mark Twain was interviewed. After various questions the interviewer came to the question of relatives, and from then on, according to Twain's own version of things, the conversation ran thus:

"Who is this picture on the wall? Isn't that a brother of yours?"

"Oh, yes, yes! Now that you remind me of it that was a brother of mine. That's William—Bill, we called him. Poor old Bill!"

"Why, is he dead, then?"

"Ah, well, I suppose so. We never could tell. There was a great mystery about it."

"That was very, very sad. He disappeared, then?"

"Well, yes, in a general sort of way. We buried him."

"Buried him! Buried him without knowing whether he was dead or not?"

"Oh, no; not that! He was dead enough."

"Well, I confess that I can't understand this. If you buried him and you knew he was dead?"

"No, no! We only thought he was."

"Oh, I see. He came to life again."

"I bet he didn't."

"Well, I never heard anything like this. Somebody was dead; somebody was buried. Now, where was the mystery?"

"That's just it! That's it exactly! You see, we were twins, defunct and I, and we got mixed in the bathtub when we were only two weeks old, and one of us was drowned, but we didn't know which. Some think it was Bill; some think it was me."

"Well, that was remarkable. What do you think?"

"Goodness knows! I would give whole worlds to know. This solemn, this awful mystery has cast a gloom over my whole life. But I will tell you a secret now which I have never revealed to any creature before. One of us had a peculiar mark, a large mole on the back of his left hand. That was me. That child was the one that was drowned. So you see they made an awful blunder. I was drowned, but they went and buried the wrong child. Sh-h-h-h! Don't say a thing about it where the family can hear it. It's a very sore spot."

Making the Map of California. From the vast flat stretches of the Sacramento valley to the loftiest peaks of the high Sierra in California the United States geological survey topographers have been for some years engaged in making accurate and detailed surveys. Recognizing the great value of having the valley lands of the state completely mapped at as early a date as possible, California has for the past nine years co-operated with the federal survey in work in different parts of the state, contributing toward the necessary expenditures a dollar of state money for each dollar spent by the federal government. The result will be a huge topographic map showing the physical characteristics of the state from end to end. The map will be made up of a large number of sheets of uniform size, each representing a rectangular area called a quadrangle. Already 174 quadrangles have been surveyed, and an atlas sheet for each has been engraved and printed by the survey.
